

I heard there's a 'debate' on 'twitter' in a couple of hours so if anyone wants to post this placard to the link herein, please do.

It's my only way to participate and I that speaks louder than any question I could ask.

Why was I suspended and why am I still suspended? DEBATE REQUIRES PRESENCE, DOES IT NOT?

I just tweeted this at Elon:

@elonmusk, why hasn't Dr. Jessica Rose been reinstated yet? She is a viral immunologist & computational virologist with a PhD in computational biology & two postdoc degrees in molecular biology who is more knowledgeable than anyone on the planet about VAERS. Asking for a friend.

Anyone who wishes to retweet to help get Elon's attention can do so here:

I had a friend permanently suspended within 10 days of opening an account post Elon acquisition, and she has no clue why. She showed me her timeline thingie at tennis.

She was given no warning, there is nothing at all in the notifications and the permanently suspended message just has the genetic violating Twitter rules. She showed me her email appeal responses - all generic confirm you get emails but I didn't see and actual response. From what I saw all appeals were completely ignored, and she says she still has been given no reason for the permanent suspension.

The last thing on her timeline was reposting a Project Veritas report on child migrants. She only made a handful of tame comments in total and hadn't made any in days. There was one news story where a "trans women" was being interviewed by NBC and claiming "she" could tell just by looking at the Colorado shooter that "he was a he, not a non-binary person." My friend said "and I can tell just by looking at the interviewee that he is a he." But that was days earlier. She has suspicions but absolutely no clue why the permanent suspension. Whatever the reason it appears Twitter has violated its own policies (I looked them up) on warnings and being promised a reason but my friend never got any insight, warnings, or reason - not even a standard acknowledgement of which policy she supposedly violated.

I'm not on Twitter, and I have no intentions of getting on Twitter. Musk and Theil started PayPal and look what it has become after their departure. One day Musk will leave Twitter and I don't want to make it anymore powerful because of what that means could easily be done again. I do wish Musk well. I think he personally is trying to improve Twitter, but ultimately the same pro-totalitarian, anti-human, nihilistic woke religious observers are still working at Twitter (just fewer of them than before).

This is one of the emails I received the other day. I get hundreds daily, and I am hearing you all.

This particular note spoke loudly to me and this lovely person gave me permission to share her words.
